Walter, The Optician

A Soft Answer.
During one of the national political conventions an orchestra was playing in a popular restaurant. The place was crowded with delegates, and the diners were talking loudly so they might hear and be heard. At one table sat a beautiful woman and her escort and at the next table a number of New York men.

Suddenly the orchestra stopped—bing!—and a New York man's voice rang out: "By George, that's a good looking woman! I'd like to meet her." The man at the next table, who was with the lady, came over, tapped the New Yorker on the shoulder and said frigidly, "Sir, that lady is my wife!" "Shake!" said the New York man. "I'm glad to meet you. You certainly are a good picker."

And hostilities were averted.

Laughter.
Worry stalked along the road, Trouble sneaking after, Then Black Care and Grief and Goad, Enemies to Laughter.

But old Laughter, with a shout, Rose up and attacked 'em, Put the sorry pack to rout, Walloped 'em and whacked 'em.

Laughter frivols day and night.
Sometimes he's a bubble, But he hath a deal of might In a bout with Trouble.

THE MURDERER CAUGHT NEAR EAST BERLIN

Maryland Man Captured by Farmer Near Adams County Town. Was Easily Recognized. Taken to York and Turned over to the Authorities. Admits he is Man Wanted.

Scott Johnson, murderer of James McAllister, of Cecil county, Md., who escaped near York from Sheriff Hager Thursday morning while being conveyed from Santa Rosa, Cal., to Elkton, Md., was captured Friday evening about dusk 10 miles from York on the Old York road leading into East Berlin, and was later taken to the York jail. Johnson was trudging along the dusty road and seemed fatigued. He was first seen by William B. Stambaugh, a cigarmaker and farmer, who had been building a house at Eberton. Stambaugh was driving along leisurely to his home when he came upon the self-confessed murderer.

Stambaugh said: "As soon as I saw him I knew he was Johnson. He answered to the description fully. He had on the old gray suit and gray cap. When he hurried I drove faster."

"Finally he sat down alongside the road to rest and I drove by him to my farm. I was sure from the description I had of him that it was the right man. I concluded to go and get a constable and have him arrested. I went over to Constable Henry Stambaugh and told him that I believed Scott Johnson was down the road, and that we had better go and arrest him. We went down to where he was and began to talk with him. He seemed very nervous and did not seem inclined to talk. I sized him up pretty well then asked him if his name was Scott Johnson. He said 'No.' I said, 'Well come and go with me to the telephone and I will find out.'"

"He refused to go, whereupon the constable said, 'You will have to go.' Johnson surveyed us. He doubtless concluded that it was no use to refuse longer, and he acknowledged that he was the right man."

"When I first began to speak with him," continued Stambaugh, "I noticed he tried to hide his hands. I noticed that they were badly skinned and I at once thought that he did it by jumping from the train. He expressed himself as willing to go with us and we at once put him under arrest and took him to York."

When Johnson got a glimpse of the police headquarters he became nervous. He was at once locked in an iron cell in the police headquarters, where he was kept over night, Sheriff Hager taking him to Cecil county today.

Johnson said that he had slept in a barn just outside of York Thursday night and that he had begged something to eat from the houses along the road. Asked where he had intended to go, he said he was going back to his home. He could have made for himself a better disguise. He had not changed any of his clothing, and wore the old gray cap, which enabled Stambaugh to identify him. Almost anybody could have picked him out of a dozen men, as he answered fully to the description given of him. He said he was 23 years old.

The two Stambaughs claim the $200 reward offered by Sheriff Hager. The Sheriff does not think that his prisoner is mentally sound.

Another man was arrested Friday night near Owings Mills but proved to be William Woods, of Hanover.

MERCHANTS WANT AN EARLY TRAIN

Retail Merchants' Association Passes Resolution Asking Reading Railroad for Early Train from Harrisburg Here.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Gettysburg held on Friday evening action was taken looking toward securing an early morning passenger train from Harrisburg to Gettysburg to accommodate the tourist traffic. The following resolution was presented and adopted:

"Whereas the merchants of Gettysburg derive a considerable portion of their business from the tourists visiting the battlefield, and from traveling men in general, and

"Whereas such business is especially dependent upon a good morning service from the city of Harrisburg, therefore be it

"Resolved that the Association requests the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company to take into consideration the matter of giving Gettysburg and the tourist trade in general a first class passenger train to arrive at Gettysburg at least an hour earlier in the morning than the present train does. And be it further

"Resolved, that the president and the committee appointed by him are directed to take the matter up with the said railroad company in furtherance of the end desired."

The committee consists of William H. Tipton, W. Laverne Hafer and John D. Lippy who will act with the president. It is the desire of the association that the railroad give an early, "first class" passenger train and not a combination as at present.

Other matters of interest to the association were taken up at the meeting which was very well attended.

E. P. Wisotzky and W. F. Cofori reported that they had attended a very successful merchants' picnic at Hanover on Tuesday and that they were cordially received. It was suggested that a similar outing for Gettysburg might be advisable.

DELLONE-JOHNS

J. Bernard Dellone, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Dellone, of Hanover, and Mrs. Sadie Johns, widow of the late Jeremiah Johns, of McSherrystown, were married in the rectory of St. Mary's Church, McSherrystown Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock. Rev. Fr. McManus, assistant rector of the church, officiated.

The attendants were Miss Beulah Simpkins and Richard Dellone, brother of the groom, both of Hanover.

The announcement of the event was made about 9 o'clock when a band of serenaders paid a visit to the home of the bride, corner of Main and Third Streets, and aroused the neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Dellone evidently expected their coming, for they invited them into the house and were "refreshed" for their trouble.

About two months ago a marriage license was issued to Mrs. Johns and Mr. Dellone, in Philadelphia. Both parties denied that there was a marriage ceremony; however, it is alleged that a civil ceremony was performed by a magistrate in the Quaker city, at that time, which has now been followed by the religious ceremony. Mrs. Johns being a member of a protestant church.

BOSTON BESIEGED BY ARMED FORCE
Bloodless War Opened Today in New England.
GENERAL BLISS LEADS REDS

General Pew, Jr., Commands the Blue Forces, Who Will Defend Boston. Giant Tanks Will Be Used to Disable Invaders' War Automobiles.

Middleboro, Mass., Aug. 14.—Today at noon Boston was besieged by an armed "enemy." Landing somewhere on the southern coast of Massachusetts, the hostile force will make every effort to "capture" the metropolis of New England.

The hope of the city in the matter of defense and security must lie with Brigadier General William A. Pew, Jr., who has been designated by Governor Draper to command the entire force of Massachusetts troops. Despite the fact that in the coming bloodless war the enemy in fighting

GENERAL TASKER H. BLISS. strength and numbers will be nearly 40 per cent stronger. General Pew has no fear that Boston will be "captured." Major General Tasker H. Bliss commands the invading force.

Tanks to Disable War Autos. Both generals will follow closely the regular rules of warfare. The automobile is to play an important part in the manoeuvres, and as the enemy, or the army of the "Red" will be much stronger in this respect than the defending "Blue" forces, General Pew must use his wits to combat their effectiveness. One plan he will adopt is unique. By his orders, Captain Charles S. Clark, quartermaster of the eighth infantry, has secured a barrel of giant tanks, two inches in diameter across the head, and the same length on the shank. These are to be distributed over the sandy roads of Plymouth and Bristol counties which may be used by the "Red" army.

One of General Pew's Plans. From a high officer of General Pew's official family, one of the legitimate military plans which may be followed was learned. It is one always favored by Count Von Moltke, and if General Pew should win success it would prove a second battle of Fredericksburg. Believing that the enemy will land its main force on the shores of Buzzards bay, and knowing that it will march towards Boston, it will be the plan to let the "Red" army proceed unmolested, except for some skirmish work to bait the enemy. At the logical time General Pew will rush his main body of troops down the south bank of Taunton river, possibly as far as Dighton, and throw all his strength of arms on the enemy's base and attempt to capture that.

By the acknowledged rule of war, an army cannot subsist without a base, and this would mean that General Bliss must "about face" and attempt to recapture his base, at the same time fighting General Pew in the place of the latter's own choosing. It is also probable that General Pew would endeavor to smash the rear guard of the "Red" army at the same time.

Today and tomorrow there will be no fighting, but both generals will manoeuvre for position, and try to ascertain accurately each others real location.

SUTTON CASE CLOSED
 Naval Court Sat Today to Discuss the Findings.
 Annapolis, Md., Aug. 14.—The largest audience that has attended a session thus far was present at the last day of the open sessions of the court of inquiry investigating the death, October 13, 1907, of Lieutenant James N. Sutton, Jr., U. S. M. C. The attraction was the summing up by Henry M. Davis, counsel for Mrs. Sutton, and A. E. Birney, counsel for Lieutenant Adams, and, possibly, something from Major Henry Leonard, judge advocate. Mr. Davis' argument did, in fact, lead the judge advocate to speak, though briefly, and what he said was not in the nature of argument touching the case.

The court sat today in private to discuss the findings, which will, when reached, be forwarded to the navy department, at Washington, whence the announcement of the result of the inquiry will be made.

Scab in Sheep.
 Symptoms of scab in sheep are intense itching, aggravated by warm weather; the loss of wool in patches; the unnatural dryness of the skin, which cracks at times; rapid loss of flesh and general unthriftiness. A veterinarian says: The following dip is excellent and does not stain the wool: Tobacco, sixteen pounds; oil of tar, three pints; soda ash, twenty pounds; soft soap, four pounds. Boil the tobacco and dissolve the other ingredients in a few gallons of boiling water and add enough water to make fifty gallons. Dip the sheep in it while lukewarm. This mixture should dip sheep if each when taken out is laid on a drain board and his wool well squeezed. It will be necessary to dip a second or even a third time in persistent cases.

The Difference.
 The difference between good stock and scrub stock is the difference between the animal which is adapted to a particular purpose and the one which is not. This is why the pure bred animal is ordinarily so much superior to the mongrel. The one has inherited tendencies, the result of generations of selected ancestry, to develop a certain form or certain qualities; the other has inherited in varying degrees so many conflicting lines of blood that there is no special fitness for any particular purpose.—Progressive Farmer.

Parasites on Sheep.
 Some writers claim that sheep ought not to be pastured on land more than one year before it is plowed and reseeded, owing to parasites, but it has been shown that sheep have been kept free from parasites by the use of tar, turpentine and salt. Sheep soon learn to eat tar. One sheep raiser keeps it, mixed with turpentine and salt, where it is accessible at all times. About one-half pint of turpentine to one peck of salt is the proportion.

 gone to his post some time ago had it not been for the delay in adopting the tariff bill.

In speaking of the reported strained relations between Russia and Japan over the navy base which the latter is establishing at the mouth of the Tumen river, contrary to the treaty of peace between the countries, the ambassador said that he anticipated no trouble which would involve the representatives of foreign countries stationed at St. Petersburg.

WAVE OF FLAMES
SWEPT MILTON, DEL.
Business Portion of Town Reduced to Ashes.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 14.—The town of Milton, in Sussex county, about seven miles northeast of Georgetown, was visited by a destructive fire, of unknown origin. The fire started in the rear of Markel & Hartman's store, and practically destroyed the entire business section of the town. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

The list of stores and other properties destroyed is as follows: Markel & Hartman, store; W. P. Starkey, store; Mason & Davidson, store; postoffice; C. A. Conner, store; Black & Lingo, store; Carey & Darby, store; J. H. Walls, meat store; Hall & Stevens, store; Mary E. Field, store; First National bank, Ponder house; W. H. Mears, barber shop and residence; J. B. Graham, residence; J. C. Clendinning, meat and provisions; S. J. Wilson & Son, funeral directors. The burned section covers several blocks.

The town, which has a population of about 1000, has no fire protection, and people worked with buckets until the arrival of a fire engine from Lewes. But the spread of the flames was not checked until nearly the entire business section was in ashes. Most of the buildings destroyed were of frame.

Careful inquiry leads to the suspicion of incendiarism as the cause of the fire. The town night watchman says he passed the Markel & Hartman store, where the fire started, and saw the electric lights burning as usual, with no indications of anything wrong. Within a half hour the blaze was discovered.

SOME GOOD ADVICE.
 By T. BLAIR EATON.
 [Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

When I left the law school with a diploma and a fine standing in my class one of my preceptors, who had taken an interest in me, said:

"Tom, you have learned a lot of law here, but in the world you don't want to practice law. You want to practice common sense. At least common sense is three quarters of the fight. There are all sorts of things in the profession that certain lawyers set great store by, such as decisions, delicate differences in law principles, expert testimony, etc. Such men, if they have any success, usually land on the bench, while the practical attorney gets rich."

Soon after entering upon my profession a Mr. Arbuckle, a very rich man, gave me one of his small cases, involving $500. Peter Winfield had sued him for the amount as part of an account due, and Arbuckle claimed that he had never ordered the goods it represented. Winfield was a small dealer, Arbuckle a prominent capitalist. When the case came to trial all I could do was to ask for a voucher. To my surprise, plaintiff's counsel produced a letter from Mr. Arbuckle ordering the goods. When I informed my client of the fact he was as much surprised as I. He did not remember writing such a letter and was sure he had not written it. After consultation we became convinced that it was a forgery, and I claimed in court that it was a forgery. Winfield thereupon hired the best handwriting expert to be had, who pronounced the document genuine.

"How do you know that it is genuine?" I asked the expert.

"The question," replied the expert, looking at me patronizingly, "involves a statement of how I reach my professional conclusions. When the document was submitted to me I sought to determine its dissimilarities from a conventional standard. Every person writes with one of a class of movements we call forearm, wrist and finger movements. I can tell at a glance under what general system the writing has been penned."

"I analyzed the letter before the court, dissected every letter and noted each departure from the standard. Such dissimilarities are invariably found to be characteristic of the writer. He cannot depart from them. After analyzing the letter I took up other bits of writing of his as furnished by my client and dissected them just as in the case of the letter submitted to me for my opinion. I found in every one of these other specimens the characteristics of the letter before the court."

"How about disguised writing?" I asked.

"In such cases the difficulty is not greatly increased. A person may successfully disguise a few letters, but in the main his natural variations from the accepted standard will be unmistakable. In cases of disguised handwriting I must first determine the method of the disguise, separating the real from the unreal features of the dissembler's natural handwriting. Having determined this, the rest is easy."

I took from my pocket a package of letters.

"Here are specimens of chirography," I said, "presumed to have been written by my client. Will you please examine them and tell me if they are genuine?"

The expert asked for time and was given till the next morning. Then he came into court and testified that of three letters I had given him one was genuine and two were not. I asked him to mark the letters, and he did so. I took them and, selecting the one that he had pronounced in Arbuckle's handwriting, examined it carefully. Then I called Henry Harley.

"What is your profession, Mr. Harley?" I asked.

"Engraver."

I handed him the letter I held, told him to examine it and asked him if he wrote it.

He replied that he did.

The court, the jury and the spectators picked up their ears.

Dismissing the witness, I called Jacob Untermyer.

"What is your business, Mr. Untermyer?" I asked.

"Paper manufacturer."

"Examine the paper on which that letter is written and tell me if you recognize it."

"It is from a small lot we have had in a loft for many years, an old watermark of our firm not now used. I furnished it to you a week ago."

"That will do. Call Stephen Munger. Mr. Munger, did you see Henry Harley write that letter?"

"I did."

"When and where?"

"Three days ago in your office."

"That will do. Gentlemen of the jury, hearing of an engraver who could imitate any one's handwriting, I found Mr. Harley and employed him to write this letter, which has been pronounced by the expert for the plaintiff as having been written by my client. To clinch the matter I secured some paper not in the market for years and the die of which has been destroyed. I have shown you how much reliance is to be placed on the expert's opinion."

The jury gave a verdict in Mr. Arbuckle's favor, and the case was closed.

My client was so delighted at the practical manner in which I had handled the case that, instead of giving me in future only his trivial cases, he gave me all his business, and I owe my success to the advice of my preceptor, which I never forgot and which brought it about.

FAMILY CURED OF SKIN TROUBLES

Two Little Girls had Eczema Very Badly—In One Case Child's Hair Came Out and Left Bare Patches—Father's Head Sore from Childhood—In All Three Cases

CUTICURA MET WITH ITS USUAL SUCCESS

"I have two little girls who have been troubled very badly with eczema. One of them had it on her lower limbs. I did everything that I could hear of for her, but it did not give in until winter weather when it seemed to subside. The next winter when it became cold weather the eczema started again and also in her head where it would take the hair out and leave bare patches as large as a quarter of a dollar. At the same time her arms were sore the whole length of them. I took her to a physician and he said that she had two distinct types of eczema. I continued with him for several weeks and the child grew worse all of the time. Her sister's arms were also affected in the same way. My husband came home one day with a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap. I began using them and also the Cuticura Pills and by the time the second lot was used their skin was soft and smooth as it had not been before the winter. We kept the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment constantly by us and when any little roughness or irritation appears on their skin I quickly dispel it with the Cuticura Remedies. My husband has used them with most satisfactory results for a sore head which has troubled him from childhood. Mrs. Charles Baker, Albion, Me., Sept. 21, 1908."

Cuticura Ointment is one of the most successful remedies for torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin and scalp, including loss of hair, of infants, children and adults, ever compounded, in proof of which a single anointing with it, preceded by a hot bath with Cuticura Soap, and followed by mild doses of Cuticura Pills, is often sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing forms of itching, burning and scaly humors, eczemas, irritations and inflammations, permit rest and sleep and point to a speedy cure when all else fails.

ARREST OF SHORE CAFE MEN BEGINS

Fifty Saloonkeepers at Atlantic City Under Bail.

SOLD DRINKS ON SUNDAY

New Jersey Law and Order League Starts Crusade in Retaliation For Disregard of Their Protest Against Sunday Base Ball—All Gambling Houses Closed.

Atlantic City, Aug. 14.—Fifty warrants for arrests of saloonkeepers charged with selling drinks on Sunday were issued by Magistrate John W. Hughes on complaints made by Field Superintendent S. H. Hann, of the State Law and Order League, and members of the Lord's Day Alliance, who started the crusade in retaliation for disregard of their protests against Sunday base ball.

Those Under Arrest. The following saloonkeepers and hotelkeepers appeared and furnished $1000 bail each for appearance before the grand jury: Louis Weinsaft, North Carolina and Baltic avenues; James J. Dougherty, Delaware and Atlantic avenues; George H. Bates, of the Inlet hotel; Martin Keane, of the "Hole in the Wall"; William F. Shaw, of the Hotel Iroquois; William Mulholland, of the Hotel Lochiel; Michael McCurk, Delaware and Atlantic avenues; Walter P. Gladney, of the Hotel Wiltshire; H. J. Statzenback, of 118 South Massachusetts avenue; James J. Gormley, of the Hotel Jackson; Richard Palmer, of 507 Baltic avenue; David Holland, of the Malatesta hotel; S. Ojserkis, of the Kuehne hotel; Councilman John Donnelly, of Arctic and North Carolina avenues; Victor Frelsinger, of Old Vienna; Harry Lister, of the New Berkeley; Mrs. Maude Keenan, of Young's hotel; Jacob Welke, of the Hotel Shelburne; John Kelly, Atlantic and Indiana avenues; William Hyman, of the Islesworth; William Wassman, of the Inlet Pavilion; Mrs. Emma Cope, of the Grand Atlantic; Alderman George W. Carmany, of the Fredonia; William B. Grimes, of the American Garden; Samuel Sites, Mount Vernon and Atlantic avenues; George Rappley, of the Fortesque Grill; Samuel C. Blatt and Louis Hyman, of the Atlantic Garden; William Singer, Georgia avenue and the Boardwalk; and Harry Graff, of the New Ethlyn hotel.

Organizations of saloon and hotel men held meetings and decided to waive hearings and trust to being freed of the charges by the next grand jury. As a result of the reform scare every gambling house in the city closed under orders to keep closed until the reform wave has spent its force. It is expected that the crusade will result in the closing of bars all over the resort tomorrow.

KEEPER KILLS CONVICT

Opens Fire After Prisoner Pierced Him Several Times With Wire. Newark, N. J., Aug. 14.—Angelo Caprio, who was waiting trial in the county jail on the charge of murder, was shot dead in the prison by John Corby, a keeper, whom he had attacked and who fired four shots at the prisoner, killing him instantly. Before he was shot down Caprio had attacked two other keepers, and Corby had gone to their aid. Caprio then turned on Corby and the shooting followed. Caprio had been making a disturbance in his cell, and the two keepers went to his cell to take the man out. As soon as they opened the door of the cell, the prisoner hit them with a long stiff piece of wire. Caprio had sharpened one end of the wire, and when Corby came on the scene the prisoner pierced him several times with it. The latter opened fire and shot the Italian.

BIG LAND GRAB IN ALASKA

Dummies Used to Gobble Up Coal Fields.

200,000 ACRES ARE TAKEN

Government Alleges Lands Worth $20,000,000 Were Fraudulently Taken by Six Corporations—Entrymen Were Drafted From Docks and Mines.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 14.—Within a month a hearing will begin in Seattle that government officials here assert will disclose proof of gigantic frauds in connection with the coal lands in Alaska.

The facts pointing to alleged frauds are known to Secretary Ballinger and Fred Dennett, commissioner of the general land office.

That more than 200,000 acres of rich coal lands in Alaska, some of them having veins sixty-five feet in thickness, have been filed upon by dummy entrymen, procured through agents of six large corporations, the land office has evidence to prove, according to information just made public. The coal lands are worth $20,000,000.

General Land Office Commissioner Dennett declares that all fraudulent entries should be cancelled at once.

One of the coal companies involved in the alleged fraud is in Seattle, another in New York, and still others in San Francisco, Omaha and Chicago.

The so-called dummy entrymen were recruited principally from the docks of Seattle, the mines of Butte and from the laboring classes of Chicago.

Land Office Busy With Suits.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Twenty million dollars is involved in pending suits to recover land to the government and 141 special grants last year and 332 now are investigating alleged land frauds, says the annual report of the general land office in referring to field work for the last fiscal year.

There were 755,341 acres of unlawfully fenced lands restored to the government. Uncle Sam netted $430,096 in cash for coal and timber land trespasses and fines in criminal proceedings regarding lands. On July 1 there remained 35,000 cases awaiting field investigations by the special agents, including 721 right of way and power site cases, almost all of the latter having been formerly approved.

"IT'S HOT TODAY."
In these days of perspiration Don't you hate like all creation That oft spoken salutation: "Hot today! Hot today!"

When your collar's floated off. Your last nerve has ebbed away. Then you hear this fool man cough: "Hot today! Hot today!"

When your shirt is all wet wrinkles And your cuffs are crushed to crinkles. O'er the phone you hear that jay: "Hot today! Hot today!"

When the teamman yells for more And you're roasted at the shore. Then you hear the awful bore: "Hot today! Hot today!"

When we get our last quietus Hope this man cannot thus greet us; Hope we'll never hear him say: "Hot today! Hot today!"

HOPPERS AND TROUGHS.

Many have adopted the hopper plan, especially for young chickens. Mixed dry ground feed, mixed grains and beef scrap are before fowls all the time.

The chickens are gradually fed up to the point where feed may be safely left before them all the time. Thus they eat about the same, seldom overeat, and bowel trouble is almost obviated.

They must also have grit, greens and charcoal. It saves time, labor, and all you have to do is to keep the hopper full, dry and safe from rats, mice and sparrows.

You can easily make a hopper as large as you please. We present pictures of the best on the market. Most are metal, which renders them sanitary.

No. 1, the "Boston," is a fine one, the screen guard attached at top falling as food is consumed. No. 2 represents it locked for the night. This hopper prevents waste, and feed is protected from rats—two great advantages. The others are good also.

For a dry ground mixture use equal parts bran, wheat midds and cornmeal. For grain mixture use equal parts whole wheat, cracked corn and broken rice.

Troughs should be so constructed that fowls cannot get into them to waste and soil feed. Those sold are mostly metal and easily cleaned.

No. 1 is protected by a drop guard. No. 2 is a metal wall trough. No. 3 is our kind, the swinging trough, and a great feed saver. If a fowl touches a foot to the trough it swings away; if it gets on the top rod, the rod, working by weights, throws the bird off. It is great for ducks, cannot be upset and may be screwed to wall or floor. No. 4, the old style V trough, is not to be sneezed at.

DON'TS.

Don't let fruit rot under the trees when the rooster crows, "We want fruit, please."

Don't talk "hard times" and swing in the shade. That's not the way a fortune's made.

Don't let the old goose want for grass and let her have the waste garden sassa.

DEPENDABLE HOPPERS

Kidney Troubles May be Sapping Your Life Away. Gettysburg People Have Learned This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, languid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Here is Gettysburg testimony to prove it.

Mrs. John T. Ohler, 116 W. Middle St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I was troubled with weak and disordered kidneys for over a year. My back ached constantly and at times pains extended into my head. I suffered from chills, was often very dizzy and was annoyed by the frequent passages of the kidney secretions. When Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me, I procured a box at the People's drug store and began using them according to directions. They helped me from the first and in a short time I was without a symptom of kidney trouble. I take pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills to other persons suffering from this complaint."

Eat Zeigler's Brand.

THE RAT SWINDLE.

By BRUCE PARKER.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

"Yes," said a retired United States mint inspector, "a mint manager needs to keep his eye open to be able to turn back the metal he receives. Gold is valuable in very small quantities. It's just as good in filings as it is in coins and as good in chips as in bars. There are lots of ways a small bit of the metal can be carried away, and as soon as one method is found out another is invented."

"When I was inspector at a western mint a young man named Trevor came into the service, in whom I took a deep interest. Indeed, it was natural that I should be interested in him, because he was engaged to marry my daughter Betsy. I had no objection to the match provided they would wait long enough for Trevor to become sufficiently valuable at the mint to command an adequate salary and to have saved a little money for a nest egg. He thought differently. He wished to be married first and get the salary and the nest egg afterward. But I stood firm, and he was obliged to wait."

"In a mint the gold ingots are sent to the rolling room to be rolled into strips. When received they are carefully weighed and when sent out are weighed again. Of course both figures should tally exactly. Well, one day there was a deficit of about $10. Of course I was greatly troubled. Before letting any one out of the room I made a personal search of every employee. Trevor worked in the rolling room, and when he came up to be searched he seemed to me to be a trifle agitated. Now, we inspectors are like detectives. We build up theories on small occurrences. It popped into my head that Trevor in his impatience to marry had fallen under temptation. But nothing was found on him or any one else. The next day there was another shortage of about $14, and the next and next shortages of various similar amounts."

"My theory about Trevor was a terrible anxiety to me. I liked the boy, and I knew Bet was bound up in him. To discover that he was a thief would be a disappointment to me and a heavy blow to her. Ordinarily I did my own investigating, but in this case I was so disconcerted over Trevor's probable guilt and so averse to watching him that I introduced a detective into the rolling room under the guise of an employee, with instructions to look for a clew and to watch Trevor especially."

"Whether my feelings betrayed me to Bet or to Trevor or both or whether they saw through the detective ruse I don't know, but a constraint sprung up between me and them. Neither party said anything about the matter between us, but each knew the other's secret. One day Trevor came up to me and said he'd like to see me in the coinage department. I saw that something was on his mind and went with him in a state of dread, fearing a confession. When we reached the room we had started for, Trevor suddenly turned to me and said:

"Do you smell anything?"

"Surprised, I sniffed and replied that I certainly did smell something dead."

"It's a rat in a trap," he replied.

"Well, what of that?"

"Go in there, pointing to a place of concealment, and watch. We will close in twenty minutes. Before that time you will see the rat removed. Then step out the door, go down the back stairs and look out the window into the yard."

"Now, it would require several days for a dead rat to emit an odor. The rat had not been there more than a day, probably not half a day. That I knew because I had seen one taken out the evening before by an employee—a 'stamper'; I'll call him Jim Smith—who tossed it out through the slot above the window."

"Rats had bothered us more or less, and I was not surprised at the trap or the catch. What puzzled me was that a rat's dead body should decay so quickly. Taking this with Trevor's act—I hate punning; I don't mean to pun—I smelled a rat. I hadn't been on watch ten minutes before Jim Smith came into the room, stopped at the trap and, jocularly saying, 'Hello, another rat!' took out the corpse by the tail and tossed it out through the slot. In a jiffy I was down the stairs with my eye to a window overlooking the yard. I had been there but a few moments when I saw a man pick up the rat, put it in a canvas bag and walk away."

"And so the man I had set the detective to catch had caught the detective napping. I kept mum and the next day removed the same rat from the trap and inside of him found gold worth $25."

"It is singular how criminals will give themselves away. If the man who used the dead rats to convey gold out of the building had taken the trouble to get a fresh rat once in awhile he wouldn't have been betrayed by an odor. We didn't like to prosecute such cases of ingenuity for fear of putting others on to the game, but the thief was soon discharged on a pretext."

"Well, as for Trevor and Bet, they had the tables turned against me. I had no difficulty in securing Trevor's promotion after his bit of detective success and hadn't the face any longer to oppose their marriage. Trevor continued to rise, and when I went out he went into my place."

"I've given you only one of the plans for secretly removing gold. I could give you dozens of them. But of all the plans ever uncovered I place the dead rat swindle first in ingenuity."

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube.

When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Genuine Eczema Remedy

New Remedy That Cures Eczema Quickly.

L. M. Buehler has sold hundreds of jars of Hokara in the last few weeks, and although he offered to refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied purchaser, not one jar was returned.

While this is surprising in itself, yet the most marvelous thing is the reports of chronic cases of eczema that have been cured by this simple skin food. People who have suffered with scales, scabs and even bleeding itching have found relief in Hokara.

No matter where the eczema, pimples or other breaking out occurs, whether on the face, hands, legs or body, the application of Hokara will give quick relief and even the worst or most chronic cases will be cured in a short time.

You can buy a liberal sized jar at a very low price 25c, and with every package goes a guarantee to refund the money if it is not satisfactory. Larger size 50c.

TYING FLEECES.

A Wool Box For This Purpose That Is Easily Made.

On some sheep farms a wool box is used to tie up the fleeces. The following illustrations from Modern Sheep show how the box is made:

"Select three wide boards from three to four feet long. Hinge these together as shown and saw the ends of the center board off, and also hinge them as indicated in the drawing. A cleat of strap iron should be made to hold the sides of the box together, as shown in another illustration.

"The fleece is folded, and the twine used for tying the same is laid on the box, as indicated by the dotted line. The sides and ends of the box are then folded against the four sides of the fleece to give it form, at the same time holding the fleece in a position so that it can be bound with the twine.

"The cleat is then removed, and the sides of the box are allowed to fall apart when the box is ready for another fleece."

Ideal Stable Conditions.

Heman O. Averill, commissioner of domestic animals for Connecticut, was recently asked to give a condensed statement of what constitute ideal stable conditions. The following terse sentences were compiled by him:

Barn on high ground with natural drainage.

No piles of manure against or near barn.

Overhead track with carrier for removing manure.

Manure carefully removed twice every day.

Stable above ground, with no cellar under stable. Stable thirty-two feet wide and eight feet high. Stable to have eastern and western exposures.

Continuous rows of window sash on each side.

Cows in double row, facing each other, east and west.

Every cow should occupy the same stallion every time.

Interior of stable whitewashed with spray pump semiannually.

Floor of stable cement. Drops eight inches deep and sixteen inches wide.

King system ventilation and wise window ventilation.

Sawdust, shaving or cut bedding to keep cows clean.

Cows should be brushed off every day when in the stable.

The udder should be wiped with a damp cloth just before milking.

Milking should be done with clean, dry hands.

A partially covered milk pail should be used.

Milk should be cooled down to 50 degrees as soon as drawn.

Food For Work Horses.

No sudden changes of food are good for the work horse, says the Ohio Farmer. People berate the steady, monotonous rations of oats, bran, corn and hay, but it is far safer to practice such monotonous feeding than to be continually giving the horse the sudden and complete changes of food suggested or even advocated by well meaning but ill informed humanitarians and theorists. Lastly, the horse requires no medicines or stock food or condimental foods or condition powders. Feed and care for him sensibly and carefully, work him properly, groom him well, see that his stable is sanitary, and he will thrive, work and enjoy life. Horses enjoying the luxury of life such as we have outlined are damaged and insulted by every dose of dope mixed in their feed or squirted or poured into their mouths.

Vigor In the Flock.

I have learned from the words of caution which have been spoken by the experienced shepherds and expressed by standard sheep literature, says a breeder, that the most important thing in the handling of a flock of sheep is to obtain and increase if possible a high state of vigor in the flock. It is very important to select a good ram. His eyes should be full and aggressive, with broad chest, as shown by a front look at the ram, with fullness of the ribs behind the shoulders, all of which are indications of that high type of vigor which is so essential for the ram at the head of the flock.

Hog Notes.

Stout bones are of vital importance. The slow maturing hogs bring slow profits.

Dry, clean nests for the pigs are about right.

The dairy hog offers a great market for skim milk, slage, corn and alfalfa. The cows pay the running expenses of the farm, and the hogs build the bank account.

Growing pigs on pasture is the right method. The habit of grazing is good for them. Not only is the feed good, but the exercise also.

ROAD DRAG SEASON.

Any Month if the Conditions Are Right For Its Use.

The road drag is like the manure spreader—in style any month in the year if the conditions are right for its use. Other machines are put in the shed to wait their season, but the road drag should always be ready to hitch to if we are to use it to the best advantage. The accepted time for the use of the drag is when the roads are drying up after the rains. It is surprising what an immense amount of good can be done the roads in an hour at such a time. Enough dirt is brought in to keep the road well rounded up, the water is allowed to run off, and the mud is puddled and plastered down so that the surface is quickly dried and compacted ready to stand the next shower a little better. Some people seem to have a wrong conception of the time to drag. I have seen one of our trustees out earning (?) the township money after the roads had been dry a day or two. He seemed to think the mission of the drag was to fill up the ruts. At any rate, he would drive merrily along, leaving in some places hardly a track among the clods.

About the most satisfaction we ever realized from dragging the roads came from a job done in the mud just before the last freeze in the fall. How can you tell when to do it? Just guess at it and keep trying. If it thaws the next day there is no harm done. And when you do hit it you surely feel like a public benefactor as you watch the teams go gliding by on your pavement to bring up with a bump on your neighbor's rough road. The spring is the time to use the road drag if you want to do some lasting good to the highway. The dirt is soft and easily worked then, and a few trips over the road with the drag, cleaning out the ditches and rounding up the surface, will do more good than a gang of men with the grader in the fall. The best job I ever did with the drag was to round up the track on a bad clay hill just as the frost was going out. That hill was good all summer.—C. J. Kelsey in Homestead.

MOLASSES FOR ROADS.

Of Great Value in Improving Highways When Mixed With Lime.

Molasses mixed with lime and oil is being experimented with by the United States department of agriculture in roadmaking, and this combination promises to prove of great value in bettering the highways in certain sections of the country.

Last fall the experts of the United States department of agriculture made several experiments on the streets of Newton, Mass. One that attracted notice on the part of authorities on street construction and no little ridicule was what was dubbed the "molasses road."

The street commissioner selected a difficult piece of road on Summit street, with a steep grade and a sharp curve—just the spot for quick destruction of a road by the automobile and heavy traffic and an equally advantageous place for observation of the effect of the strong wind.

A preparation of molasses, lime and oil was mixed with a small amount of cement and spread on the surface hot. The liquid in the mixture percolated to the substratum of rock and made a surface of from two to three inches of heavy binding material. That section has passed the tests of winter, and today the surface is so hard that considerable force is required to dent it with a pickaxe.

It is not slippery, it gives a firm footing for horses, and automobiles do not skid. On this section of Summit street are located fine residences and a large school for girls, and today, with the windows open, no irritating particles of dirt are driven into the dwellings.

Any one who takes a look at Summit street is not likely to gibe at the "molasses road." It is said to be less expensive than street watering.

Maintaining the Highways.

The New York State Automobile association has endorsed a bill before the legislature at Albany which provides for a tax on automobiles graduated as to weight, the proceeds to be devoted to the maintenance of the improved highways of the state. On the basis of present registration an annual income of $500,000 is expected from this source. The income from automobile registration fees in Massachusetts for eighteen months amounted to $145,000, which was used in road maintenance last year. But the state has built 770 miles of improved road, which require for proper maintenance an expenditure of $300 a mile a year. It is estimated that a law patterned after that recommended by the New York Automobile association would provide a sufficient income in Massachusetts to maintain the improved roads without a specific legislative appropriation.
